

מִצְוַת
לֹא תַעֲשֶׂה
#217

 We learn this mitzvah from Parshas Kedoshim: (דברים כ"ז)

בְּהִמְתֵּךְ לֹא תִרְבִּיעַ כְּלָאִים

We aren't allowed to make two different kinds of animals get married to each other, like a cow with a sheep.

 The details of this mitzvah are explained in Mishnayos & Gemara: Mesechta Kilayim perek Ches

Rambam: Hilchos Kela'im

PEREK VOV

Today we finish learning about Kilai HaKerem, not growing other plants together with grapes. We learn how much of the grapes become asur if they are planted close to vegetables. We also learn about mavrich, when the grapevine goes underground and comes up in a different place. Can we grow something else in between?

PEREK ZAYIN

We learn what is considered a Kerem (vineyard) according to halacha, and what is considered just a single vine, which is less strict than a full Kerem.

PEREK CHES

Grapevines can grow on the ground, or we can drape them over a wall, a fence, or an arch. Letting them grow on the ground is the regular way we grow grapes. When the vines are hanging over something else, called Aris, there are different halachos.

We also learn that the halachos are a little different outside of Eretz Yisroel.
